Amy Day: Foundation Governor

This month we have had the first governor meetings of the academic year which has given us a chance to go over the positives from last year but to also see where we, as a whole school community, can improve and make things even better for our children.

As part of my role as Pupil Premium governor, I will be joining staff training this term which I am really looking forward to and which will hopefully help me to greatly develop my role at the school. There are great opportunities for further personal development within the role of governor, so I would really recommend it to anyone wanting to learn new things and get involved with the school.

I hope to visit the school after half term to see how new teaching projects are being implemented and the effect they have on the pupils learning.
